No Reason For It.

When Norway Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Norway citizen says:

George E. Buswell, Marston St., Norway, Me., says: "About six months ago my kidneys became disordered and I began to suffer from dull pains across the small of my back. A languid feeling came over me, and I was unable to rest well. I also noticed that the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage although the flow was scanty. My body often bloated and I was also troubled by dull headaches. I read that Doan's Kidney Pills had rid other persons of similar troubles and decided to try them. I procured a box from Stone's Drug Store. They cured me and I am free from kidney complaint at the present time." 44-45

Catarrh Sufferers. Good Thing to Know How to Get Instant Relief.

If you now own a Hyomei hard rubber inhaler, Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, wants you to know that he will sell you a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Remember this, all who suffer with catarrh—a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounced High-o-me) is put up in a separate package and sold for 50 cents, to accommodate the vast army of people who already own a Hyomei inhaler.

Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, will sell it to you at that price and give you the opportunity to begin at once to rid yourself of vile catarrh and the sniffing, hawking and spitting that go with it.

Many people through years of neglect have let catarrh get a strong hold upon them. Some of these people unconsciously think that one bottle of HYOMEI ought to cure them.

They do not stop to think that a diseased condition that is the result of negligence cannot be overcome in a week.

No matter how chronic your catarrh troubles, HYOMEI is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, to cure them if you give it all a chance. Just breathe in, that's all, and its healing, soothing, antiseptic properties will make you feel better in a day.

If you own an inhaler get a 50 cent bottle of HYOMEI at the Noyes Drug Store today. If you do not own a Hyomei inhaler, ask for a "complete" outfit, which consists of an inhaler, a bottle of HYOMEI and simple instructions for use. This complete outfit costs $1.00, but you then have an inhaler that will last a lifetime. 44-46

The Birch

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is authority for the statement that the paper birch, often called also white birch, or canoe birch, is one of the best timber trees in this country which seem to be holding their own against ax and fire. The average citizen, however, probably takes no particular interest in the paper birch. Yet it is doubtful if any other kind of wood on the face of the earth is found in so many household uses for paper birch furnishes most of the spoils made in the United States.

Maline is the chief center of spool manufacture. Its factories turn out 800 million spools yearly, chiefly birch. Few woods as hard as this the tools; its principal recommendation lies in that fact. It is handsome in color, and, after the wood becomes seasoned, it shrinks and warps very little. That is an important consideration, because the delicate machinery that winds the thread would fail to work if the spool changed its shape to a perceptible degree.

The birch wood for spools must be selected and handled with care. The tree's red disk heartwood is objectionable because it will not turn smooth in the lathe, and the color is not desired. Few industries waste more wood, in proportion to the quantity used, than spool making. Heartwood, knots, and all other defects, frequently amounting to more than one-half of the tree, are rejected. From one-half to three-fourths of the remainder may go to the refuse heap in sawing the bars and turning the spools. Despite this waste the paper birch does not appear to be threatened with extinction. It is a fire tree that it spreads rapidly over spaces left vacant by forest fires. The most extensive paper birch forests of Maine and New Hampshire occupy tracts which were laid bare by the great forest fires which swept the region from 1825 to 1837.

The tree is short lived. At an age when the white cedar, for example, is just beginning to lay on useful wood, the paper birch has passed its prime and is ready for decay. It is placed, at still further disadvantage by being unable to compete with other trees for light and soil. It prospers when growing alone, but it gives up the fight after stronger trees begin to crowd it. Nevertheless, it is believed that more paper birch is growing in the United States today than two hundred years ago.

Your Line is Reported Busy

A party line subscriber is sidetracked while the other subscribers on his line are talking.

A special line is never in use unless you are talking yourself.

The more special lines in an exchange, the better the service.

Don't knock the Telephone Company because lines are reported busy.

The subscriber elects which class of service he will take and rates are based on the cost of furnishing that particular class of service. Call up the local Manager and get rates for special line service. It is the best we have and the cheapest at the price.

A Dealer Writes: We have three other makes of ranges—all good ones—but we cannot induce people to buy them after they have seen the

Crawford Ranges

After people see the Single Damper (patented) and realize that one motion—sliding the knob to "kindle," "bake," or "check"—absolutely controls fire and oven and that damper mistakes are impossible,

And after they see the Two Hods in the base and realize their convenience (one for ashes instead of the old clumsy ash pan and one for coal);

And after they know about the Crawford Oven with cup-joint flues, And the Patented Grates,

Why should they buy the others?

Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write us for circular.

He died in Leadville, Col., Oct. 20, of pneumonia. The Herald-Democrat of that city says of him:—
The deceased was born at South Waterford, Me., June 28, 1847, and at an early age went to New York city, where he became employed as a bookkeeper in the firm of B. H. Claffin.
After he had worked in various cities in the east he became tired of the life there and urged onward by the stories of the great opportunities in the west, and especially in the city of Leadville, he set out in the direction of the setting sun and arrived here in the latter part of 1879.
But before leaving the east he married and when he had become settled in this city and had secured one of the best positions in the camp, that of bookkeeper and paymaster of the Crystalline mine, he sent for his wife and she arrived here in July, 1880, and ever since that time the couple have lived in Leadville.
After leaving the Crystalline company, Mr. Nelson entered the grocery business with a partner.
Later he was employed as bookkeeper for the Leadville Live Stock company and up until the time of his death was employed in the same capacity with the Western Hardware company.
Mr. Nelson was one of the best accountants and bookkeepers in the state and had made this occupation his life work.
He was a man of excellent habits, of a quiet and retiring disposition and one who had gained the respect and admiration of all who knew him.
He is survived by a wife.

THE CALDWELL

ELECTRO MAGNETIC INSTITUTE

will be opened in the Beals House, Norway, Maine, Nov. 8th, 1910. Chronic diseases healed by Electricity, Magnetism, X Rays and other natural methods. No cutting or maiming by surgical operations. The head physician will be in charge personally and all affected with any disease which has resisted the usual treatment will be welcome him free of charge.

They have brought with them the newest and most potent electrical machine, used with great success by similar specialists in the large cities, and will be prepared to give patients the same benefit they would receive by the greater quility of time and money necessary in going to New York.

If you are sick and run down add electricity to your body and vigor, health and happiness will return, and with health your undertakings will succeed. With a single application they can infuse new strength into your veins. This trial treatment they are willing to give free.

Their methods and appliances are the newest discoveries, entirely different from what you have seen before. No injurious results are possible for either the sick or well.

If you are discouraged and disgusted with taking quantities of nauseous medicines, if you have learned the lesson that you cannot make health by taking poisons into the stomach, then go to The Caldwell Electro Magnetic Institute and learn how they cure by the harmless, gentle means of nature's true assistants, electricity and magnetism.

Kitchen Wisdom.

Potatoes should be peeled as thin as possible. Turnips must be peeled thickly, taking as a guide the line that appears just inside the skin. Carrots, parsnips and saffron should be scraped. Sweet potatoes and beets are boiled in their skins, says the Ladies' World.

If the range has become red from over heating or rust, before applying stove blacking, rub the surface well with vinegar, allowing it to dry. Blacken when the stove is slightly warm not hot.

When buying fowls for fricassee, never allow the butcher to splinter the bones by chopping with the cleaver. Ask him to remove the sinews from the legs, and cut through the joints.

If meat, when cooking, has to be turned, be careful never to pierce it with a fork. Boiled or stewed meats should be seasoned when cooking. Broiled and fried meat should be salted and seasoned after removing from the fire.

Corned beef, ham or any salted meat should be put in cold water or lukewarm water. Fresh meat should be immersed in rapidly boiling water to prevent loss of juices. Allow both kinds to boil quickly at first, removing any scum that rises, then push to back part of stove to simmer, allowing 30 minutes to the pounds for corned beef, 18 to 20 minutes for ham and mutton. Boiled meat should be left in its liquor to cool.

Peas and beans should never be swimmied in water. They should be cooked with as little liquid as possible to retain flavor of the vegetable, but must be constantly watched to prevent burning.

There is no reason why the disagreeable odors of boiling cabbage and cauliflower should fill the house. Boil the water rapidly, and plenty of it, in an uncovered kettle. Cut the cabbage and cauliflower in pieces, put in a little at a time to prevent the water from cooling, with a fork push it under the water every few minutes. In this way cabbage should cook in 25 minutes.

Before it is ready for the oven, bread should rise to twice its original size. Therefore, do not put in more than enough to half fill the pans, or the loaves may be an ugly shape and the rising may be over.

When frying, do not put fat over too much food in your frying basket at once, or the heat of the fat will be reduced, and the outer surface of the food, instead of being crisp and dry, will absorb the fat, and become indigestible and greasy.

When boiling beets, peas, squash, corn or turnips a little sugar in the water will improve them.

A skillful cook attributes her famed success in making delicious mayonnaise to the fact that she always adds a few drops of onion juice.

Salt mackerel should be soaked overnight with the skin side up. Change the water the last time before going to bed and again upon rising. Salt fish should be broiled.

When some member of the family is belated, his dinner should be kept hot, not in the oven where it will dry out, but on a covered plate of boiling water.

The freshness of fish can be readily judged by redness of the gills, brightness of the eyes and firm, odorless flesh.

A tablespoonful of vinegar added to the water in which fish is boiled, has a tendency to whiten the meat and render it firmer.

Dried bread crumbs should be used for puddings, escallops, dishes or anything in which milk or other liquid is used. Crumbs for breading vegetables, egg-plants, etc., in connection with egg, should be grated from the loaf, as being fresh, they do not absorb so much moisture.

House Cleaning.

The model house should not be too fine for daily use, and this establishes the fact of house cleaning. Not that the fine pretentious house should not be cleaned; there is a certain amount of sweeping, dusting, airing, etc., but 'tis quickly over with. All houses should be thoroughly cleaned at least twice each year.

Many housekeepers recommend beginning with the attic. My advice would be that you start with the cellar. If any part of the house needs early and faithful attention it is this. Many an innocent appearing cellar has developed germs of diphtheria, typhoid and kindred diseases which have been the cause of great anguish and heartache. Be sure your cellar is in a sanitary condition. Remove all decayed vegetable matter; if the bricks and stones have a suspicion of slime and accumulated dust, treat them with a strong solution of lime wash or carbolic acid, either are good disinfectants, scrub the steps, wash the windows and open them up. Let in the air and sunshine and all death dealing germs will vanish. This cleaning should be done in early spring.

Next attack your attic. Relics of generations past possibly from the Mayflower may here be represented, neat a coating of dust and cobwebs. If one possesses an old piece of furniture its value is too great to be allowed to gather dust in an attic. Make a bonfire of all useless articles such as parts of chairs, broken tables, stands, old trunks, boxes, etc. Everything worth saving should be well aired and dusted, windows washed and the air allowed to circulate through every nook and corner. With attic and cellar thoroughly cleaned you have a good start on your house cleaning.

A Romance of Colonial Days.

The editor has received a copy of "A Royal Tragedy" by Nat Wilder Jr. The scene of this romance of Colonial days is laid at Wiscasset, in this State. Near there to-day, stands the old house that was to have been the home of Marie Antoinette, had plans for her escape from France been successfully carried out.

The scenes and incidents in this historic romance are taken from letters and manuscripts found in an old trunk in the garret of the Captain Cloud homestead at Wiscasset.

The illustrations of the book include, Block House on Davis Island, a land mark near Wiscasset which is visited by thousands of summer tourists; the Marie Antoinette house at Edgcomb, where the French queen was to be concealed after her escape from Paris; fireplace and mantle in Marie Antoinette's house, where peace and rest awaited the French queen. Her own furniture from the palace and the little trinkets made the spacious room as new and humble surroundings would permit.

The book is a rare treat to those who like to read of when kings and savages ruled. The Fireside Publishing Company, 25th West 42nd Street, New York City, is the publisher.

Prophecy.

Those who have an idea that the coming of the automobile was first foretold in Mother Shipton's prophecy should search the Scriptures for proof to the contrary.

In the Book of Nahum, for instance, the prophet says: "The chariots shall rage in the streets; they shall jostle one another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightning." All that seems to be lacking in advice to which man is the best, and whether the steamer has any advantage over the car equipped with an internal-combustion engine.

Plain Honest Statements of Facts.

At the last term of the S. J. court at South Paris an indictment was brought against Ansel Dudley and his son Carl Dudley leading merchants of Woodstock for liquor nuisance. The only thing they were guilty of was selling cheap, articles sold by every retail merchant. They were only technically guilty, if at all, and erred through their ignorance of the law.

Mr. Dudley has always been a temperance man and a strong advocate of prohibition. He never used alcoholic liquors himself, in fact, could not tell one kind of liquor from another. His aggressive work for temperance has caused him many enemies among the cheap element of the town.

The case against Paul Dudley was not pressed and Ansel Dudley paid a fine of $100 and $10 costs rather than have a trial with all that it involved.
